Searching for a Will using Certainty Will Search – Certainty the National Will Register provides a very comprehensive way to ascertain whether a Will exists, or search for a missing or later Will. By conducting a Will Search you/your solicitor have been pro-active in the search. However, although our extensive search service has not uncovered a positive match for a Will, we are unable to guarantee that a Will does not exist based on the information provided to conduct this search.

*No Positive Match - A positive match is where a Will has been discovered matching the deceased's details provided and contact with the searcher has been made by the solicitor holding the deceased's Will, at their discretion. To maintain the confidentiality of the testator's wishes, if someone is searching for a Will who is not entitled to know the whereabouts and contents of the Will prior to Probate being granted, they will not be contacted.
